Ulrich Genth Visual artist

© Heike Mutter / Ulrich Genth

Ulrich Genth, born in 1971 in Tübingen, is a visual artist and has been working with Heike Mutter since 2003 on internationally site-specific interventions in public spaces, with which the artists put the political, historical, social and aesthetical conditions of public spaces up for discussion. The works of Heike Mutter and Ulrich Genth have also been exhibited in institutions such as the Israel Museum in Jerusalem, the MUCA Roma in Mexico City, the Kunstverein Hannover and the Kunstmuseum Wolfsburg.

Dr. Ulrike Groos Director of the Kunstmuseum Stuttgart

© Gerald Ulmann

Dr. Ulrike Groos, born in 1963 in Schlüchtern, is the director of the Kunstmuseum Stuttgart and the Museum Haus Dix. From 2002 to 2009, she was director of the Kunsthalle Düsseldorf. In Stuttgart, she has organised thematic exhibitions on food in art, ecstasy and the relationship between art and jazz, as well as monographic exhibitions on Michel Majerus, Candice Breitz, Ragnar Kjartansson, Tobias Rehberger and Wolfgang Laib.

Julia Grosse Art historian, artistic director of Contemporary And (C&)

© Benjamin Renter

Julia Grosse is co-founder and artistic director of the Contemporary And (C&) platform. She is a lecturer at the Institute for Art in Context at the Berlin University of the Arts and associate curator at the Gropius Bau. Grosse studied art history and worked as a columnist and art journalist in London. She is the author and co-editor of various books and was awarded the “European Cultural Manager of the Year” prize in 2020 (together with Yvette Mutumba). In November 2023, she curated the first major institutional exhibition of John Akomfrah in Germany, “John Akomfrah. A space of empathy”.

Dr. Barbara Holub Artist

© ESEL

Barbara Holub is an artist and lives in Vienna. In 1999, she founded “transparadiso” together with Paul Rajakovics as a transdisciplinary approach to art, artistic-urban intervention, urbanism and architecture. Barbara Holub also deals with the question of what role art and artistic interventions play for current social issues and how these can be effective on a long-term basis for “direct urbanism” as socially committed urban development. Holub was the president of the Vienna Secession (2006-2007) and was awarded the Austrian Art Prize (2018). She teaches at the University of Applied Arts Vienna.

Britta Peters Curator

© Silke Briel

Britta Peters works as a curator with a focus on art in public spaces. Since January 2018, she has been the Artistic Director of Urbane Künste Ruhr. Previously, she was responsible for Skulptur Projekte Münster 2017 as the curator in a team with Marianne Wagner and Kasper König as the artistic director. The specialist in cultural studies has curated various major exhibition projects in Hamburg, for instance from 2008 to 2011 as director of Kunstverein Harburger Bahnhof. Peters has participated in numerous international panels, events and publications on art in public spaces and has also taught as a visiting professor at the Kunstakademie Münster.

Anike Joyce Sadiq Artist

© Belaid Le Mharchi

Anike Joyce Sadiq (*1985) lives and works in Berlin. Until 2013, she studied at the State Academy of Fine Arts in Stuttgart. In her artistic practice, she links questions about marginalised positions within the prevailing society with the specific historical, social and spatial conditions of the location. She is interested in the various dimensions of representation and how social dynamics, intersectionality and perspectives of difference within institutional structures are (not) negotiated. Her work has been shown and acclaimed in various national and international institutions. She was a scholar of the Kunststiftung BW, the Cité Internationale des Arts Paris and the Akademie Schloss Solitude.

Lea Schleiffenbaum Art historian and curator

© Merav Maroody

Lea Schleiffenbaum is an art historian and a free curator. With a focus on projects in public spaces, she deals with collaborative processes, as well as the formulation of individual and collective needs and their reflection in contemporary art. As a mediator for the Gesellschaft der Neuen Auftraggeber, she realises projects in public spaces, most recently with Sasha Waltz in Marl and Sol Calero in Schwarzheide, Niederlausitz. Together with Friederike Fast, she curated the Lantzsch'er Skulpturenpark in Düsseldorf in 2022. At present, she is working on a project with Simon Denny in Beeskow and Judith Hopf and Florian Zeyfang in Sauen.

Letizia D'Alleva

Letizia is in her final year at school and will be taking her final school exam, the Abitur, in 2024. As a member of the Kulturpass team she is very motivated to be part of the major art project in public spaces as a jury member. She is fascinated by the ambiguity of art. One work of art can trigger something different in everyone, sometimes even something completely different in one and the same person. It is important to her that every Stuttgart citizen feels they are being spoken to, seen and heard. The art project is intended to offer a "safe space" that brings people together regardless of the background that apparently separates them from society.

Livia Schauwecker

Livia is in the twelfth grade and will be taking her final school exam, the Abitur, in 2024. Art fascinates her, because artists have the ability to express feelings, thoughts and circumstances on canvas and present them almost like a non-verbal diary. Through her work in the Stuttgart Kulturpass team she discovered how much she could enjoy participating in major projects, and her love of art motivated her to take part in the major art project in Stuttgart. Her vision for the project: something that is clearly against discrimination and stirring up hatred.
